It hasn't been a good year all round for corporate governance – which makes it all the more important that exemplary performers be recognised. This year's Singapore Corporate Awards – the fourth presentation – will do just that.

Supported by Singapore Exchange and organised by The Business Times, the awards shine a well deserved spotlight on the companies whose corporate governance records and disclosure practices are impeccable – and an example to the rest.

A panel of expert and distinguished judges made the final selections using a range of quantitative and qualitative criteria in various categories: Best Managed Board, Chief Executive of the Year, Chief Financial Officer of the Year, Best Investor Relations and Best Annual Report.

The guest-of-honour at the presentation last night at the Shangri-La Hotel was Minister for Law and Second Minister for Home Affairs K Shanmugam.
