2Q10 Result Review

• The unprecedented severe hot weather from the start of the year and the unstable weather condition thereafter have reduced the supply of self-bred Dragon Fish fries. This has affected the profitability of the Dragon Fish sales in the 2Q10 as Dragon Fish off-springs need 3 to 6 months to grow into marketable size. However, the situation has since stabilised when the Dragon Fish production resumed in the 2Q10.

• In addition, the air traffic disruption due to volcanic ash, political riot in Bangkok and the month-long World Cup football tournament which each has an adverse effect on the group’s sales and profitability during the 2Q10 were unforeseen circumstances which we viewed as one-off incidences.

• As a result, it appears that Qian Hu’s 2Q10 result missed our expectation, with net profit attributable to coming in just below S$1m (-43% yoy), forming 14% of our FY10 estimates.

• However, as 1H10 net profit of S$2.3m (-23% yoy) formed 35% of our FY10 forecast, the group is still on track to meet our FY10 numbers.

• During 2Q10, the ornamental fish revenue took a plunge of S$1m (-8.2% yoy) as its export sales suffered a temporary blip due to the closure of Europe airspace and flights disruption as a result of volcanic ash and the low business activities during the recent FIFA World Cup football tournament period as mentioned earlier.

• On the accessories segment, the business was also impacted by the political riots in Bangkok, which occurred from mid- March to mid-May 2010. During this period, the group’s wholesale accessories activities, as well as its retail chain stores in Bangkok’s downtown area, drew to a halt during the violent demonstrations and curfews. With the group’s Guangzhou factory experiencing lower export volume of accessories due to World Cup, revenue from the accessories business declined to S$8.6m (-6.3% yoy) in 2Q10.

• Despite these challenges, the group cash hoard in 2Q10 improved to S$8.8m, while net asset got boosted to S$71.7m. Management also indicated that the group is confident of its 2H sales numbers outperforming this one off disappointing result.

Recommendation – maintain BUY

• Overall, we like Qian Hu for its recessionary resilient business model, and we believe that the group is on track for another profitable year.

• We maintained our estimates but target price of S$0.20, pegged at 11x, below its mid-cycle valuation to CY11 P/E, and still a discount to the FSSTI average. Qian Hu trades at 8.2x CY11 P/E and just 0.8x P/NTA, which is cheap given its almost recessionary proof business model and strong brand equity, in our opinion.

• Given resilient outlook by the group, we reiterate our Buy recommendation.

Technical BUY

• The stock appears to have formed a bullish wedge pattern and prices broke out above the wedge resistance yesterday. Prices also closed above both its 30-day and 50-day SMA.

• Its indicators are rising but the momentum is starting to slow. Its MACD is also testing the zero level, which could hinder near term movements.

• Traders should buy on weakness. AS long as prices remain above the S$0.115 levels, we think the potential for an uptrend breakout is still intact. If prices break out, it could soon test S$0.145, its 200-day, followed by the recent high of S$0.17-0.18 again.
